Observed: Your homepage score is below the Digitrix 90-point threshold.

Next step: Start with the recommendations in the Page Speed section.

03 / REVIEW NEEDED

Canonical URLs | 3 affected pages

Observed: / A canonical link suggests which URL should represent duplicate or similar content.

Next step: Confirm this is the intended preferred URL. Target availability and Google's selected canonical need separate checks.

04 / REVIEW NEEDED

Indexing directives | 1 affected pages

Observed: Indexing exclusion detected: robots: noindex, nofollow · X-Robots-Tag: An intentional noindex can be correct for ad landing pages, private content or utility pages.

Next step: Confirm the page's purpose. Keep noindex on pages meant to stay out of search; remove it only if this URL should be indexed.

Measurement scope and next steps

Google indexing, rankings & search queries: Public HTML cannot establish Google's index state or ranking positions.

How to check: Use verified Search Console access and location-specific ranking data.

AI mentions & citations: Crawler access is not evidence that AI answers mention or recommend the business.

How to check: Test relevant questions on each target AI service and record dated answers and sources.

Backlink profile: No external backlink dataset is connected.

How to check: Connect a backlink data provider to measure referring domains, links and anchor text.

Conversions & lead quality: No analytics, advertising or CRM data is connected to this report.

How to check: Connect consent-aware conversion tracking and compare enquiries with qualified leads.

Automated review of observable content and search-intent signals. Intent is inferred, and wording-based gaps need human confirmation. No factual-accuracy, originality or semantic-quality score is claimed.

40 pages read; 3 pages rendered at 390px, 320px and 1365px. Other pages were checked from fetched HTML.

0 rendered samples could not finish. Third-party API calls, frames, service workers, media, cookies, POST requests and interactions are excluded.

Up to 40 pages; crawling is bounded to 75 seconds and rendering adds a bounded sample. Query URLs, downloads and account pages are excluded.

Issue = an observed missing or malformed signal; review = a contextual decision, not a confirmed SEO error. Passed = the narrow check was satisfied, not a guarantee of quality or rankings.

Titles and descriptions are compared only across pages read. Canonical destinations, social images, schema eligibility and the full link graph are not validated.

Content below 100 whitespace-separated words is flagged for manual review only, not as a Google word-count requirement.

Content and intent findings use observable indicators and need editorial judgment. They do not establish factual accuracy, expertise or originality.

Competitor comparisons describe sampled page checks, linked profiles, content and homepage lab speed when available. AI answers, Google positions and backlinks need connected external data sources.

Parameter evidence: Canonical URLs

Why it matters: A canonical link suggests which URL should represent duplicate or similar content.

Action 1: Confirm this is the intended preferred URL. Target availability and Google's selected canonical need separate checks.

Action 2: If duplicate versions exist, choose a preferred URL and declare it consistently. A missing HTML canonical is not proof of an indexing problem.

Guidance: <https://developers.google.com/search/docs/crawling-indexing/consolidate-duplicate-urls>

Parameter evidence: Indexing directives

Why it matters: An intentional noindex can be correct for ad landing pages, private content or utility pages.

Action 1: Use Search Console to check actual index status; absence of noindex does not guarantee indexing.

Action 2: Confirm the page's purpose. Keep noindex on pages meant to stay out of search; remove it only if this URL should be indexed.

Parameter evidence: JSON-LD structured data

Why it matters: Relevant structured data can help search engines interpret page content and enable eligible search features.

Action 1: Validate the markup's properties and match it to visible content. Parsing successfully does not guarantee rich results.

Action 2: Consider appropriate structured data for the page, such as Organization, Article or Product. Check existing Microdata/RDFa before adding JSON-LD.

Parameter evidence: Social share metadata

Why it matters: Share metadata helps social platforms build a useful preview when someone shares a URL.

Action 1: Provide a page-specific share title, description and a publicly accessible image, then preview the URL in the platform's sharing debugger.

Parameter evidence: Internal discovery links

Why it matters: Useful internal links help visitors and crawlers discover related pages.

Action 1: Check that important pages are reachable through descriptive links. Link destinations are only checked when included in this crawl.

Action 2: Where useful for the page's purpose, add crawlable links to related services or supporting information. A focused ad page may intentionally limit links.

Parameter evidence: Readable page content

Why it matters: The fetched HTML should explain the offer and help visitors complete their task.

Action 1: Review usefulness, accuracy and intent. Word count alone cannot establish content quality, originality or search relevance.

Action 2: Review the page and its rendered content. The under-100-word flag is a manual-review heuristic, not a Google minimum or a reason to add filler. Short utility pages and some languages need different interpretation.

Parameter evidence: Title and heading topic alignment

Parameter evidence: Buyer decision information

Why it matters: Service visitors often need to understand the offer, process, evidence and how to get a price. Absence of these phrases is not proof the information is missing.

Action 1: Check the page visually. Where useful, explain the service, process and relevant proof, then give pricing guidance or a clear quote route.

Parameter evidence: Similar main content across pages

Why it matters: Highly similar service pages can make their distinct purpose unclear. This heuristic is not a duplicate-content penalty or a plagiarism test.

Action 1: Review the two pages side by side. Explain their distinct audience or service; consolidate only if they fulfil the same purpose.

Parameter evidence: Small touch targets

Why it matters: Small controls may be difficult to tap. Spacing, inline-link and equivalent-control exceptions need manual assessment.

Action 1: Review these targets and their spacing on a phone. This size-only screen is not a WCAG compliance verdict.

Parameter evidence: Mobile viewport

Why it matters: The viewport declaration helps mobile browsers size the layout to the device.

Parameter evidence: Page language

Why it matters: The declared language helps assistive technology pronounce page content.

Action 1: Declare the actual page language on the html element, for example lang="en" for English. Confirm multilingual content uses the appropriate language.

Guidance: <https://developers.google.com/search/docs/crawling-indexing/robots-meta-tag>

Parameter evidence: robots.txt response

Why it matters: Crawler directives should be readable and intentional.

Action 1: Review crawler rules before changing them. Do not block a URL in robots.txt when crawlers need to read its noindex directive.

/	Passed	HTTP 200 at /robots.txt .	See 1

Guidance: <https://developers.google.com/search/docs/crawling-indexing/robots-meta-tag>

Parameter evidence: XML sitemap discovery

Why it matters: A sitemap can help discover important URLs, but is not required for every website and does not guarantee indexing.

Action 1: Keep intended canonical URLs in the sitemap and check coverage in Search Console.

/	Passed	HTTP 200 at /sitemap.xml . Sitemap XML detected; only the bounded discovery sample was read.	See 1

Guidance: <https://developers.google.com/search/docs/fundamentals/seo-starter-guide>

Parameter evidence: Sampled page responses

Why it matters: A failed crawl can indicate a server response, redirect, request timeout, non-HTML resource or bot block.

Action 1: This covers only the sampled pages. Run a larger crawl to assess the rest of the website.

/	Passed	40 HTML pages read; 0 requests failed or returned non-HTML within this sample.	See 1

Guidance: <https://developers.google.com/search/docs/fundamentals/seo-starter-guide>

Parameter evidence: Content sections and heading order

Why it matters: Descriptive sections help people find answers and follow the page.

Action 1: Use meaningful headings for distinct sections. Check heading order and the actual reading experience; short pages may not need subheadings.

Guidance: <https://developers.google.com/search/docs/fundamentals/creating-helpful-content>

Parameter evidence: JavaScript-rendered content

Why it matters: Some websites build their main content with JavaScript. This sample checks what is present after rendering.

Action 1: Review significant differences and resources that did not load. This is a bounded render without sign-in, consent clicks or user interactions.

/	Passed	Mobile rendered text: 3257 words; fetched HTML: 3352. Desktop: 3257 words. 0 resource failures; 7 requests excluded.	See 1
/contact-us	Passed	Mobile rendered text: 98 words; fetched HTML: 107. Desktop: 98 words. 0 resource failures; 7 requests excluded.	See 1
/about-us	Passed	Mobile rendered text: 120 words; fetched HTML: 131. Desktop: 120 words. 0 resource failures; 7 requests excluded.	See 1

Guidance: <https://www.w3.org/WAI/WCAG22/Understanding/reflow.html>

Parameter evidence: Horizontal overflow at mobile widths

Why it matters: Unexpected sideways scrolling can hide content. Tables and other two-dimensional content may intentionally scroll.

Action 1: Inspect the named wide elements on mobile. Constrain overflowing containers or provide appropriate local scrolling; confirm intentional exceptions.

/	Passed	No document overflow at 390px, 320px or 1365px.	See 1
/contact-us	Passed	No document overflow at 390px, 320px or 1365px.	See 1
/about-us	Passed	No document overflow at 390px, 320px or 1365px.	See 1

Guidance: <https://www.w3.org/WAI/WCAG22/Understanding/reflow.html>

Parameter evidence: Visible form field labels

Why it matters: Labels help visitors understand inputs and assistive technology identify fields.

Action 1: Associate each field with a visible label and verify its accessible name. Placeholders alone are not persistent labels.

/	Passed	8 visible fields. No unlabelled fields detected in this sample.	See 1
/contact-us	Passed	5 visible fields. No unlabelled fields detected in this sample.	See 1
/about-us	Not applicable	0 visible fields. No unlabelled fields detected in this sample.	See 1

Guidance: <https://www.w3.org/WAI/tutorials/forms/labels/>

Parameter evidence: Small mobile body text

Why it matters: Very small body text may be difficult to read. This is a design heuristic, not a minimum size required by WCAG.

Action 1: Review readability and text resizing on a phone; increase small text where useful.

/	Passed	No sampled visible paragraphs/list items below 12px.	See 1
/contact-us	Passed	No sampled visible paragraphs/list items below 12px.	See 1
/about-us	Passed	No sampled visible paragraphs/list items below 12px.	See 1
